8 ICONIC DESIGNS OF GEOFFREY BAWA

A walk through eight iconic designs of the late, Geoffrey Bawa, one of Asia's most influential architects

Sri Lanka has always been a favourite destination for travellers, despite its troubles. People love its sun-kissed beaches, green, verdant, lush mountains, and mouth-watering local cuisine. Sri Lanka also is the proud owner of many unique architectural marvels, including those by one of Asia's most influential architects, the late Geoffrey Bawa. From the age of 38, when Bawa abandoned his profession as a lawyer at the age of 38 to become a qualified architect and until his death in 2003, he designed 30 hotels, schools, and private residences across the country. His work and him, both are celebrated even today.

GERMAN DESIGN AWARDS

The German Design Awards are celebrating their tenth anniversary this year and being accompanied by a campaign focusing on the theme of “How Designers Think”

How can the sustainable transformation of our industry and society succeed? What new ways of thinking, materials and economic models are needed to achieve this goal? Today more than ever, outstanding design means providing answers to the challenges of our time, promoting thinking in circular models and realising visions of a better world based on the design of actions. Sometimes it is only small changes or ideas that have a big impact, sometimes it is entire business models. The top-class international jury of the German Design Award honours these groundbreaking design achievements - and the German Design Award makes the design trends visible across all sectors in a glittering setting. The German Design Council promotes talented, up-and-coming designers with its “Newcomer” award. This year, Anne Bansen is the winner in this category. She was selected from among four competing finalists, Maria Bürger, Kalina Todorova Kondeva, Justine Masché and Felix Thode.
