GENTLY UPLIFTED

The Kamwokya Community Centre goes beyond its practical function, inspiring pride and ownership among the community

Pritzker Prize-winning architect Francis Kéré's firm Kéré Architecture has built a community center that features butterfly roofs and low-rise structures in Kamwokya, one of the most underserved areas of Uganda's capital Kampala. Named Kamwokya Community Center, the 1,600-square-metre community centre was realized in partnership with the local non-profit Kamwokya Christian Caring Community (KCCC), which runs sports, leisure and artistic activities in one of the poorest areas of Uganda's capital, Kampala,
