PROJECT

THE LENS

Iamatilde studio has signed an important project in the city of Turin, designing The SCATTO restaurant

The SCATTO restaurant was designed to be a contemporary space that celebrates and enhances culinary art, drawing inspiration from photography for the language of its architecture and interior design—hence the name of the venue, which literally translates into “photograph” or “snap”. In material and visual continuity with the new Gallerie d’Italia museum, the SCATTO project puts light front and center: by using a blend of reflective materials, like steel and mirrored glass, and opaque options like wood, light transforms the perception of spaces by balancing more visible and more secluded areas.
