WOODY LUXURY

A luxurious Forest House in Italy designed by Ashley Gadeova evokes emotion through its unique use of materials, texture and lighting

Located in Piemonte (Italy), the Forest House project is a beautiful residential design that is defined by the balanced use of natural and durable materials such as marble, wood, and metal. Designed by a Rome-based designer, its strong contemporary feel and sophistication come mainly from its connection to the forest and the mountain environment which was the main inspiration for the entire interior design. Piedmont Region, called Piemonte in Italian, is one of Italy's most picturesque regions, which is bounded on three sides by the Alps, making it a lush, green, fertile, and beautiful destination, which makes it a great place to search for inspiration. As you know, the Italian tradition of understanding beauty, art, and the good life can be found in almost every aspect of the home. Natural high-quality materials such as wood, marble, or stoneware, play an important role in defining the look of an Italian-style interior design.
