NOSTALGIC POLAND

Polish cities and towns reflect a sense of nostalgia and a confluence of various architectural styles

Polish cities and towns reflect a whole spectrum of European architectural styles. Romanesque architecture is represented by St. Andrew's Church, Krakow, and St. Mary's Church, Gdansk, which is characteristic of the Brick Gothic style found in Poland. Richly decorated attics and arcade loggias are the common elements of Polish Renaissance architecture, as evident in the City Hall in Poznan. For some time the late renaissance style known as mannerism, most notably in the Bishop's Palace in Kielce, coexisted with the early baroque style, typified in the Church of Saints Peter and Paul in Krakow.
