TEASING THE TERRAZZO

Love Terrazzo and are wondering how to use it in new creative ways? Read on to know some unconventional ways to incorporate it in your design!

Terrazzo, which means “terrace” in Italian, was originally used in public spaces for its durability and low maintenance but was eventually found to be easily customizable and chic. If you think it only belongs on the floors of ancient churches or elementary school hallways, think again. This trendy tile is rapidly taking over the architectural and interior design world in more ways than you might think. While flooring is the most traditional use of the material, designers are seeing a rise in terrazzo countertops, backsplashes, wall tile, furniture, lighting, and decor.

ARCHITECTURAL GEMS OF INDIA

JAIPUR'S 9TH GATE

The Patrika Gate in Jaipur, also called the 9th Gate, is a monument of splendour and a top favourite among Instagrammers for its opulent beauty.

When we talk about the royal architecture of India, Rajasthan comes first to our minds. This state has many breathtaking architectural and historical monuments. Of late we have been seeing a surge in the popularity of many of these places because of social media where people share their beautiful travel pictures from many of these destinations, in turn encouraging others to go and visit these places. In other words, they are what is called Instagram friendly! Today we will explore an interesting place that is a top favorite of a large number of influencers and travel vloggers - the lavish Patrika Gate. The Patrika Gate in Jaipur is a famous monument and tourist attraction in the capital city of Rajasthan. It is located 30-minutes outside of the city center and serves as an entrance to Jawahar Circle Garden.
