DAKSHINESWAR KALI TEMPLE

The Dakshineswar Kali Temple is rooted in deep spirituality, a socio-political statement, and a beautiful example of the ancient Bengali style of temple architecture.

Located on the banks of the Hooghly River, the Dakshineswar Kali Temple is one of the most popular places of worship not only in Kolkata but all across eastern India. The temple was founded by Rani Rashmoni in 1855, a philanthropist and an ardent devotee of goddess Kali. The presiding deity of the temple is Bhavatarini, an aspect of goddess Kali. The 19th century mystic sage and reformer Ramakrishna Paramhansa and his wife Sarada Devi were associated with this temple for a major part of their lives.
